

The Future City Competition: Building the skills and vision to create better infrastructure

Better infrastructure, better communities, better lives: That's what happens when creativity and craft come together to engineer the future. And that's why Bentley is proud to sponsor the National Engineers Week Future City Competition.

We've stepped up our support and taken a leading role to help this program reach even more students. After all, we make software for improving the world's infrastructure—and we want to see it in skilled hands.

Congratulations to all Future City teams: You're on your way to building a better world.
